1. Workers at the Grivita railroad shops have become disaffected because of the impossibility of supporting their families on the pay presently received. Production in the shops has sharply declined in both quality and quantity. Workers no longer attend factory meetings of the Rumanian Workers Party and criticize the regime openly. Changes in plant management have produced no results.
2. The Soviet authorities refuse to accept locomotives turned out by the plant because of the poor quality of workmanship. Workers are not paid for the repairs that it is necessary to make on locomotives produced on Soviet order.
